Welcome to Torekov Pizzeria. We call our project "an symbol of integration". As we want to inspire to bring cultures together beyond borders. The owner is Yakan Selim, who is of Kurdish origin, but he grew up in the north of Syria in a town called Kamishli. Yakan studied business administration at the University in Aleppo. He came to Sweden 5 years ago. Now he's brother Segvan is also helping him. When designer and photographer Johan Lindeberg decided to relocate from downtown NYC, where he lived almost 20 years, to a barn outside Torekov, he met with Yakan and Segvan. They decided to work together and to create a integration project. Johan has supported with the interior. You can also see Johan's photography on the walls. Look specifically on the borderless wall, which shows women that Johan photographed all over the world. Johan wants to show that it's no difference of energy between Gisele, who's maybe the biggest model in the world and Marina Abramovic, who's probably the biggest female artist in the world and the indigenous people from North of Colombia and Nepal.
